Voting Machines Would Cut Cost of Elections in County, Study Shows

The use of voting machines in Cape May County's 54 election districts would save the taxpayers an estimated $4,584 a year in costs of elections, according to figures made public Tuesday by Lawrence W. Lear, director of the Board of Freeholders.

Mr. Lear, who heads the county revenue and finance department, announced results of a study he made in cooperation with the County Board of Elections on the relative cost of machines and the paper ballots now in use.

He said the cost of conducting an election with machines was estimated at $16,700.50, as against $21,290 with paper ballots. These figures were based on the use of 64 machines in the 54 districts.

Each machine could handle 200 voters, the director said, which would mean that two would be needed in some large districts. Normally, records show this one or more voters are not in the event of unforeseen breakdowns.

Mr. Lear said 64 machines would cost the taxpayers $68,000 if bought outright for cash in a single budget. The cost would rise to $119,376 if financed on a bond issue over a 10-year period.

The cash purchase would push up the tax rate 12 cents for the single year, he said. The amortization plan would add 1.5 cents to the rate over the 10 years. During the purchase period the cost of debt retirement would more than offset the savings in election operation.

The cost study was instituted some months ago after The Sentinel-Ledger and another county newspaper suggested that the people be given the facts on both methods. Previously the freeholders rejected the idea of buying voting machines because of the high purchase price.

Week-End Auto Crashes Injure 7 in City Area

3 Hospitalized From Worst Collisions on Highway Entrances

Two men and a young woman were hospitalized and four other men were injured slightly in three automobile accidents which occurred Saturday and Sunday when a heavy influx of traffic crowded the resort's entrances and streets on the first June week end.

Jean Doherty, 19-year-old visitor from Arlington, Va., suffered a cut and injured right leg early Saturday morning when the auto in which she was a passenger figured in a crash on the Somers Point-Ocean City bivd.

Miss Doherty was admitted to Shore Memorial Hospital, where it is reported she also suffered a fractured bone in her left foot. Treated for minor injuries and released were Huch T. Flynn, 23, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Vincent O'Neill, 20, of Philadelphia.

According to Patrolmen Raymond Meenan and John Merris, both cars were enroute to Ocean City at about 3:30 a. m. when the crash occurred, involving Flynn's car and another operated by Gerald F. Glackin, 20, of Philadelphia.

According to the police, the Glackin car was proceeding about 25 miles an hour on the inside lane. Flynn's car approached from the rear in the passing lane. Flynn moved to the right to allow a truck to pass, and the rear of the Glackin auto. The impact drove the Glackin car into the guard rail.

Miss Doherty was a passenger in Flynn's car, while O'Neill was riding with Glackin. Both drivers were issued summonses charging careless driving.

See Page 2, column 5, please

According to police estimates, the Glackin car was a total loss, while Flynn's auto sustained about $600 damage.

A 71-year-old Ocean City man and an airman of the Palermo Air Force Base were hospitalized Sunday evening after their cars collided on the Ocean City-Longport bridge.

The four bridges spanning thorofares over the route of the Ocean City — Somers Point blvd. will be strengthened under improvements announced this week by the State Highway Department.

The N.P.G. Construction Co., Inc., of New York, offered to repair eight parts of the concrete bridge spans and the underside of the concrete decks at a cost of $27,320.

The contract calls for the improvement of bridges which span Beach Thorofare, Rainbow Channel, Eboe Thorofare and Ship Channel. The four bridges total 4,734 feet in length.

Because the lone bid was below the Highway Department estimates, it will be reviewed and a contract award will be considered, department officials said.

Similar repairs to the pilings will or another to the work which has been done the past several years on the Beach Thorofare span by Hugh Way and his timsel workers.

Repairs to the pilings will be made by removing the concrete from the steel cellars that will extend above and below the normal tide range. The space between the pilings and cellars will be filled with concrete and the job will remain as permanent protection against future erosion, engineers said.

Cement will be applied pneumatically to the underside of the bridge deck and its supporting beams.

Resort Honors Its War Dead

2 Officers Speak at Rites at Park

Memorial Day observation's war dead was inspirational and practical in Ocean City Thursday in addresses by two guest speakers at the annual Memorial Day reremonies at Memorial Park.

Lt.-Col. Hollis Lewis, of Fort Dix, N. J., called on those who were dead to just as alive today as it was on the first Memorial Day 39 years ago. Capt. Eugene F. Seng, of the Palermo Air Force Base, stated that new atomic weapons will reduce the number of casualties, living and dead, in the future.

The ceremonies climaxed a memorial observance which started an hour earlier at the Music Pier, when a wreath was cast onto the ocean in commemoration of the Naval war dead. A brief but colorful parade, formed from the beach front, through the business district, to Memorial Park for the 11 o'clock ceremonies.

Lt. Col. Lewis, of the Infantry School at Fort Dix, told a large crowd at the park that the "lie of dying easily among those graves of our Civil War is now broken. Nevertheless, there never shall be severed the spirit of gratitude and reverence which we hold for the selfless service that has been rendered by our country's valiant sol-

William H. Smith Dies at 80; Builder Was Early Fire Chief

William H. Smith Sr., building contractor who over the past half century has been responsible for supervising or worked on the construction of about 20 per cent of the homes and built on this island, died at his home, 1107 Ocean av., Thursday morning. He was 80.

Mr. Smith was one of the few remaining pioneers who since the turn of the century has contributed to the physical and civic growth of Ocean City by active labor and by participating in a number of progressive movements.

He figured prominently in the organization of the old Liberty Hose Company No. 3, which was chartered April 2, 1903, with sixty members in the 1200 block Asbury av., and which shared the early-day fire fighting chores of the community with Volunteer Fire Company No. 1.

He was also active in the consolidation of Liberty Company and Company No. 1 into a single fire fighting unit which was stationed in the new city hall at 9th st. and Asbury av. in 1915.

At the time of his death, he was the oldest living member of the Ocean City Exempt Firemen's Association, the membership of which encompasses a number of early volunteer fire fighters.

During World War I he served as assistant fire chief, and resigned that post to go to Cape May to build drydocks for the U. S. Coast Guard there. About 1910 he was built of Ocean City's swimming pools, one of whom was on duty at night at the Ocean City Yacht Club.

He was a 32nd degree mason and a member of the Shrine of New Jersey's Independent Order of Red Men. He was a member of the Free and Accepted Masons, and belonged to the Camden Consistory, Ancient Scottish Rite of Free Masonry. He was also a member of the Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Degree of Pocahontas. He was a Presbyterian by faith.

He was the father of Police Chief William H. Smith Jr. and of Warren J. Smith, president of Smithbilt Homes Inc.

He and his wife, the former Marie Dingee, recently celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary. He had been a resident here for 40 years.

Rotarians Become Foster Fathers of Greek Girl Whose Father Died Fighting Civil War

The 66 members of Ocean City's Rotary Club all became fathers at the same time, this week.

This multiple paternity situation developed when confirmation was received from the Rotary Club of Piraeus, New York, that the Rotarians have "adopted" an 11-year-old Greek girl as their "daughter" for the next 12 months.

One of the millions of youngsters left orphaned by the ravages of war all over the world, little Antonia Papadopoulous lives in the village of Makrohorion, in Kozania District of Greece. For the coming year the Rotarians, as a group, will provide $15 a month for her support, including a cash grant each month and periodic parcels of food, clothing and medical care if necessary.

The club voted to enter the group project this past weekend at a cost, so it took a little time for a child to be assigned and other red tape disposed of.

Antonia is being cared for by her aged and ailing grandparents, who are extremely poor, according to Foster Parent Secretary.

Her father was a field laborer who adequately supported his family on his own land and by hiring out to others. In 1947, during the Greek civil war, he was killed in battle. Shortly before his death, the mother disappeared and nothing is known of her whereabouts.

Antonia and her grandparents live in a two-story house consisting of two rooms on the upper floor and another on the ground floor which is used as a stable. The house is described as very old and in poor condition. They have virtually no furniture and only the barest essentials of bedding, clothing and house-

School Wary On Use of Autos

Fatal Crash Brings Extra Precautions

Ocean City school officials are maintaining extra watchfulness over the use of automobiles by students who drive to and from school, as the result of a furore which arose on the mainland recently following an accident that killed two students at Atlantic City.

The students who died were said to have been violating a school regulation on the use of cars when not using them for transportation to and from school.

One follow-up was an action last week by the Woodbine Board of Education in opposing the use of cars by borough students who attend the Millville High School.

Dr. Charles B. Pierce, Ocean City school superintendent, said that while a number of students drive to school, "we have been doing so much more successfully than many parents.

"We have been operating such with the consent for a number of years to relieve the board of responsibility," said the superintendent.

He also pointed out that the board several years ago banned the use of cars by students during lunch periods, a time when they still are technically under school authority and in control. This ruling was based on complaints of "speeding" by motorists.

5 More Bathing Beaches Guarded This Week End

The bathing season opened with a fairly large crowd of sun and surf bathers visiting the resort's beaches Memorial Day and over Saturday and Sunday, Beach Patrol Captain Thomas Williams said.

Williams estimated about 10,000 persons on the beach Sunday, with Thursday's and Saturday's throngs rivaling that number. The week end produced one lost child and five first aid cases.

Five additional protected beaches will be opened this week, adding to the three at which lifeguards were stationed for the holiday week end. About 12 more guards will be added, bringing the force to 30 men.

The newly protected beaches will be at Atlantic blvd., Brighton pl., 9th st., 17th st. and 32nd st. Opened last week and were St. Charles pl., 10th st. and 16th st.
